Donuteria, the Austrian manufacturer of premium donut, is opening in the city centre of Vienna.

A donut is not just a donut. Anyone who gives in to sweet temptation will experience love at first bite.

Following the store in the Shopping City Sued, a second branch is opening on 23 June in the Viennese city centre at Seilerstaette 30 in the Haus der Musik.

With up to 22 different varieties to choose from, each one handmade by a confectioner using regional ingredients, it is clear that very special donut are on offer here. The Austrian version.

Because the Austrian palate is particularly fastidious we have created special varieties, Austrian classics as it were. We don't run out of ideas. From apple strudel through to poppy seed and plum jam, and curd cheese and apricot through to the Styrian. "There's something for every sweet tooth," according to our Managing Director.

Of course there are classic varieties too like nut-nougat, strawberry or quad chocolate.

A high-quality selection of bagels, Barista coffee (also to go), cold drinks and fruit snacks make every hungry and thirsty heart skip a beat. Order and delivery are likewise on offer.

For company celebrations, meetings, private parties, weddings or picnics in the park, our products are delivered fresh and directly to your door.

The outlet is bursting with modern but down-to-earth design, and is open seven days a week.
